WEDNESDAY EVENING, NOV. 16, 1887.

SINCE their recent defeat in New York the Republicans are doing lots of whistling to keep up their courage.

GOVERNOR STEVENSON, of Iowa, says the late elections insure Cleveland's re-nomination and re-election "beyond a reasonable doubt." This is pretty strong language coming from a Republican State, but it echoes a sentiment that is quite general.

REPUBLICAN leaders are casting about for a candidate for President. The late elections upset their programme. They see there is no hope with Blaine as their standard bearer. But then there is Sherman, and Allison, and Hawley, and Edmunds, and Evarts, and—Foraker.

It is not generally known, but it is a fact nevertheless, that a large candy manufacturer of Baltimore, Md., is thinking of removing his establishment to this city. He has written here asking about Maysville, her debt, her shipping facilities and her advantages as a manufacturing point. It is to be hoped the investigation he is making will induce him to make the removal. If the matter was taken in hand and pushed by some of the public-spirited people of this city, the establishment could no doubt be secured. Where are the public-spirited citizens of Maysville? Let them be heard from.

OUR NEIGHBORS.

MAYSVILLE.

The Nimrods of this vicinity were out in force last Saturday.

Everybody has got the "worst cold they ever had." We have one who knew it bad, and hard to get rid of.

A double wedding in high life will come off at this place on the 21st inst. The contracting parties belong to the first circles. The Presbyterian Church will be the scene of the nuptials.

It's just as natural as rolling off a log for the young bloods to meet to her on Monday to compare notes of conquests made or fortunes lost on the past day and night.

John C. dwell, who has been rustling in the West for several weeks past, is at home again, in time to take in the wedding.

"Squire John L. Raymond is still confined to his home. He has been poorly and a great sufferer for months past. We hope he may soon be out again.

Enos and John M. are in Clark County, visiting their brother and some of their friends.

Sausage and spareribs have made their appearance in our market. They are in demand.

Rev. C. P. Williamson, of Clarke County, will deliver a Thanksgiving sermon in the Baptist Church of this place on the 24th inst., at 11 a. m.

Monday was a cloudy misty day, but little rain. We need it and it will come by and by.

The walnut-timber men are operating in this vicinity again. For further information see Mr. Robert Payne, agent.

H. Devin, of Nicholas County, made us a social call a few days since.

ABERDEEN CLIPPINGS.

T. & T. Simons keeps fresh beef at all times.

Always ready—Squire Beasley—to attend a wedding.

Our merchants are making preparations for a holiday rush.

C. B. Sutton and son, Otis, paid Manchester a visit Tuesday.

We chronicle with pleasure that Mrs. John Case, Sr., is come better.

The J. O. G. lodge here is enjoying a boom, three new members added in the last week.

Miss Maggie Heide, one of our prominent society belles, is visiting in Cincinnati this week.

B. M. Hudson, our popular coal merchant, left for Pomeroy Friday to look after his coal interests.

Captain Powers made his regular pilgrimage to his wassie establishment at Portsmouth, Sunday last.

The concert to be given here on Thanksgiving night promises to be a grand affair. Particulars later.

Miss Anna Mowell, of Washington, Penn., is the guest of Mrs. Colonel Simmons, having arrived last Saturday.

John Greenlee received his pension Monday of $1.00 and upwards. From the looks of things—well, we will desist.

The Ohio Valley Mills are making the best grades of flour on the market, as their rapidly increasing trade proves.

John ain't in love just because he got seventeen dozen photos taken. No, his general good spirits is caused by the boom the DAILY BULLETIN is enjoying.

The young people had a merry time, and were only sorry that Flossie's birthday does not come oftener.

Preaching at the Baptist Church every night this week. Turn out everybody, and greet the worthy pastor, Mr. Jackson, with a crowded house, and you will be well repaid, for the reverend gentleman is truly an eloquent orator and enters into his work, heart and soul.

It is a disgusting fact that some toughs from Maysville come over here of a night and whoop and yell through our streets, using language that would make a stone image blush with shame. Such a party was perambulating our streets last Monday night. They had neither decency, principle nor anything else that would elevate them above a brute. Such things should be brought to a halt, and that at once.

Wedding parties who contemplate visiting Squire Beasley should take care and steer clear of those who hang around the Maysville wharf at night waiting for such snags. They are generally drunk and not fit to convey people across the river. Blow the horn for the ferry-boatman who has a good dry skin, is sober and understands his business, and will take part of the fare to the "Squire's" residence. Worn at Central and Grand View hotels.

Again to the front. The Hon. Jesse Ellis has again demonstrated beyond peradventure that he has no peer as a pension attorney. He has just got an increase for Thomas Kinder of double the amount first granted and that in the short space of three months. Mr. Ellis seems to have a knack of getting his claims through with more speed than any one else, and as a consequence the demands for his services are constantly increasing.

HOPPER & MURPHY have an elegant stock of jewelry on hand for the holiday trade. Call and examine their goods.

SOME STARTLING FIGURES.

FEW MEN OF THE NEW STATES
NATIVES OF THE EAST.

Lines of Migration in the United States.
Facts Obtained from a Railroad Man.
The Breeding Ground of American Men.
The South.

It is a historical fact that all great migratory movements of peoples or of races have been, with few exceptions, westward, along the degree of latitude on which they were born. In our country the men of northern birth have almost always emigrated to the northwest. Those of southern birth have followed trails which led to the southwest.

A few weeks ago I was talking with two comrades in the dirty office of an ill kept hotel at Prescott, in Washington territory. One of my comrades was a bright, snappy railroad official; the other was a farmer, who cultivated 3,000 acres of highly productive wheat land. I had been traveling through the marvelous wheat growing region known as the Ratouise district, where the established rules which control agricultural operations in the Mississippi valley are ignored, and where the most productive land lies on the top of hills, and I told my comrades what I had seen. I dwelt strongly on the fact that I had met but few men who were from New England or from the north-eastern states in the region. When I asked the settlers with whom I talked where they came from they answered from Missouri, from Iowa, from Arkansas, from Indiana, from Tennessee, from Illinois, from Kansas, from North Carolina, and at long intervals one would reply that he had been raised in one of the New England states. The fact that New England was scantily represented in the new states which are being created in the west impressed me strongly, and it troubled me strangely.

I said, as I looked inquiringly at my comrades, "I do not understand why there are so few New England men in this region." The railroad official thrust his hand into the breast pocket of his coat and drew forth an envelope, which he handed to me, saying in explanation:

"Last December our company placed an advertisement in the hands of an advertising agency to publish in all their newspapers. This envelope," he tapped it with his index finger as he spoke, "contains the record of the answers we received during the first four months of the year, and from what state they were sent. Read the record, and you will then understand why you do not meet New England men in the west."

I thrust the envelope into the breast pocket of my coat. That night after we had separated I read the list, and it sharply indicated that the railroad official had spoken truthfully. But the list also indicated that the southern people who live in the old slave states had ceased to emigrate. But I knew that the southern people were emigrating westward in enormous numbers, and this knowledge made me doubt the correctness of the deductions the railroad official had drawn from his list of letters of inquiry received. So I laid it away until I could have access to that portion of the tenth census which relates to the nativity of the population of the different states. The volume lies open before me as I write.

I group the New England states and the states of New York, Pennsylvania, New Jersey and Delaware for convenience of illustration, and as typical of the northeast. This group contained 11,576,000 native born white inhabitants in 1880. Ohio, Illinois, Indiana, Michigan, Wisconsin, Minnesota, Missouri and Iowa having in 1880 a population of 12,772,831 native born whites, I group as states settled in part, and almost wholly in some cases, by New Englanders, and use the group as typical of western states, to illustrate my meaning.

To the figures: The total number of letters of inquiry that were received at the railroad office in answer to the advertisement, which was published in many hundred newspapers, was 4,402. Of this number 161 were sent from New England, 17 from New Jersey and Delaware, while New York and Pennsylvania sent 493, four-fifths of which were from the western portions of those states. The total number of letters sent from the first group of states was 671. During the same time 2,364 letters were received from people residing in the western group of states. It is a significant fact that more letters of inquiry were received from any one state which I have placed in the second group than were received from all New England. And it is also significant, and indicative of the strength of the migratory instinct of the western people, that more letters of inquiry were received from the far western states, in proportion to their population, than from any other portion of the Union. For instance, 409 letters were received from Iowa, a comparatively new state, and which contained 1,353,040 white people in 1880, and 163 were received from Indiana, an older state, which had a white population of 1,744,764 in 1880. Illinois, which had 2,448,173 native white population in 1880, sent 300 letters, while Ohio, having 2,723,582 native white population, sent 254 letters. Kansas, one of the youngest states, and having a native white population of 842,311, sent 366 letters, and Missouri sent 375 letters, or 214 more than New England.

In the region included in the second group of states food is plentiful and cheap. The people are not overcivilized. Large families are raised. It is today the greatest breeding ground of American men. The migratory instinct is strong in the people. They are venturesome and courageous and willing to endure hardship. These people are western bred, and are western in thought and feeling in every fiber of their bodies. If the migratory instinct has become weak in the Puritan stock which remained in New England, the nativity of the population of the new states which lie beyond the Missouri river should show it. How is it? In 1880 Kansas, alleged to be the beloved child of slavery hating New England, contained 22,395 people of New England birth. Up to 1880 Illinois had sent 100,000 of her children to Kansas. Missouri sent 60,228. Ohio sent 93,306. Indiana furnished 77,069 emigrants to Kansas. Kentucky forwarded 32,978 of her blue grass bred children to the Prairie state, or 9,583 more than New England. How is it in Colorado? New England supplied 11,156 inhabitants, a large proportion of them consumptives, to that arid land. Missouri sent 12,434 tough, hardy citizens to the highlands of Colorado. In Oregon, in 1880, there were 4,300 people from New England and 10,754 from Missouri. The same story is told by the emigration statistics of all the western States. Today Missouri ideas and methods of thought are more powerful beyond the Missouri river than those of New England.

The Southern people have not ceased to emigrate, but in their case the natural law which compels men to follow westward the degree of latitude on which they were born has been obeyed. The nativity of the population of Texas proves that the southern people have emigrated as freely as those of the middle Mississippi valley.—Frank Wilkeson in New York Times.

Effects of "Patent" Medicine.

David Hostetter, of Pittsburg, Pa., who has made a vast fortune in the manufacture of bitters, is a man about 70 years of age. Physically he is insignificant. He is not much over five feet in height and of very slender build. His hair is white and he wears a gray mustache. He has a large family. His eldest son, who was threatened with consumption, is now in California and is in much better health than when he left Pittsburg. Mr. Hostetter's wealth is estimated at between $5,000,000 and $6,000,000. There was a time when he peddled his medicines on foot.—New York World.

Coducation of the Sexes.

It is not generally known that the coducation of the sexes is carried on without restrictions in the University of Texas. Young men and young women are admitted to the same classes in every department and are eligible to degrees and honors without exception.—New York Evening World.

Dangers of Foul Air.

If the condensed breath collected on the cool window panes of a room where a number of persons has been assembled be burned, a small amount of singed hair will show the presence of organic matter, and if the condensed breath be allowed to remain on the windows for a few days, it will be found on examination by the microscope that it is alive with animalcules. It is the inhalation of air containing such putrescent matter which causes half of the sick headaches, which might be avoided by a circulation of fresh air.—American Analyst.

Another Fidelity Muddle.

CINCINNATI, Nov. 16.—Another Fidelity muddle. The day before the failure the Fidelity management sent a check to Treasurer Ratterman for $4,700 for full payment of the half year's taxes. Next day the bank failed. Mr. Ratterman had failed to present the check for payment. Receiver Armstrong refused to pay it. Ratterman has written the stockholders each one to pay his assessed share of tax due before the failure. They refuse to do so. Courts will be called to decide it.

Sane or Insane.

OSHKOSH, Wis., Nov. 16.—An attempt will be made in the Waupaca county court to secure the release of Charles Rollin Brainerd, who is alleged to have been committed to the Northern Insane hospital by the madous testimony of the plaintiff's step-mother. Mr. Brainerd is forty years old, of superior literary attainments, and a contributor to a number of leading publications. Dr. Kemster declares him sane. Mr. Brainerd claims he is the victim of his mother's action on account of property.

Voorhees or Smith.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Nov. 16.—A call has been issued for a meeting of the Democratic state committee to be held next Wednesday. Steps will be taken, it is said, to suppress Green Smith, who has been figuring conspicuously as a candidate for the Democratic nomination for governor. A member of the committee says that it has been decided that Senator Voorhees must make the canvass for governor next year, and that the party will require his acceptance of the nomination.

Struck Against Double-Header.

MASON CITY, Ia., Nov. 16.—Forty of the brakemen on the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul road at this place struck yesterday, absolutely refusing to go out on double-headers. The fireman was thrown the length of fifty cars into the river and instantly killed. The engineer was thrown the length of two cars. He is not expected to live, being seriously injured.

Won on a Foal.

MINOT, Dak., Nov. 16.—J. C. Schroeder, of Michigan, and Paddy Welch, Jr., met in a fight, one mile north of this place yesterday. After three desperate rounds were fought the fight was given to Welch on a foul. The stakes were for $100.

Is It Not Singular

that consumptives should be the least apprehensive of their own condition, while all their friends are urging and beseeching them to be more careful about exposure and overdoing. It may well be considered one of the most alarming symptoms of the disease, where the patient is reckless and will not believe that he is in danger. Reader, if you are in this condition, do not neglect the only means of recovery. Avoid exposure and fatigue, be regular in your habits, and use faithfully of Dr. Pierce's "Golden Medical Discovery." It has saved thousands who were steadily failing.
